WASHINGTON CITY.

The Missing Links Found.

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—The Times' Washington special says that such links as were lacking in the chain of evidence in the Babcock case are understood now to be completed. This is brought about by the unexpected entrapment of Everest, the whisky ringite, who served as alternate with Joyce and Babcock. When the cloud burst upon the whisky ring he escaped and his absence was a serious drawback to the prosecution. It has come to light within thirty-six hours that he has been apprehended by the government detectives and that he will be produced upon the stand to the confusion of his fellow conspirator, Babcock, as soon as the trial opens. The facts pointing to the accuracy of this information are well grounded, though the government officials refuse to give any information in the matter. His testimony will undoubtedly settle the cases of McKee and McGuire, which have heretofore hung upon pretty slender threads, rendering the conviction of Babcock almost a certainty and destroying the possibility of success of a new trial in Avery's case. The evidence of Everest is valuable in that it will supply a link in the general chain of testimony and may be said to complete legal developments of the case on the part of the prosecution.

National Republican Committee.

WASHINGTON, Jan 13.—The National Republican Committee met this morning at the Arlington House, and was called to order by ex-Gov. Morgan of New York, who said the National Committee had assembled for the purpose of taking the first step in the Presidential campaign. The duties were simple—the fixing of time and place for holding the National Convention. The Secretary, Hon. Wm. Chandler, called the roll, when it was found that the original members were present, and 11 by proxy. After some debate all proxies were admitted. The committee then heard one member from each delegation from cities asking that the National Convention should be held at the places named.

Gov Garfield said the convention ought to be held where it would do the most good to the Republican party. Ohio was now one of the closest Republican States, but he hoped it would not be so in future. It was also one of the greatest Western States, and would stand in the election in October with in company with Maine, New Hampshire and Indiana. We can't afford to lose Ohio and save the election to the Republican party. As to the city of Cleveland sufficient money has been subscribed to build a wigwam and furnish all the other necessary accommodations.

Mr Sherwin, of Cleveland, made a few remarks in favor of that city.

Gov Noyes gave reasons why the convention should be held at Cincinnati. Ohio delegation was here in behalf of no particular Presidential candidate. He showed the political advantages of holding the convention there. The Exposition building would hold 15,000 people and the hotel accommodations were amply sufficient.

Mr Medill advocated Chicago, and spoke of arrangements made with the railroad companies for tickets at reduced rates, showing easy and cheap access to the city. Hotel accommodations are ample, with graduated prices. The Inter-State Exposition building is the largest structure in this country with the exception perhaps of the Centennial main building, and is well suited in all its apartments for the convention. It will seat from 5,000 to 15,000 people in addition to the space required for the convention. He also presented other considerations why Chicago should be selected.

Saratoga Springs, Philadelphia, Washington, New York and San Francisco were urged and Mr Creswell, of West Virginia, invited the convention to meet at Wheeling.

An informal vote was then taken [illegible] for fixing the place of meeting with the following result—Cincinnati 15, Chicago 5, Philadelphia 3, Cleveland 4, Saratoga Springs 2, Boston 1, New York 1, St. Louis 1, Washington 1.

A formal vote was then taken with the following result—Cincinnati 20, Chicago 7, Philadelphia 1; Necessary to decide, 21 votes.

Two ballots were subsequently taken with this result: Cincinnati 20, Philadelphia 16, Chicago 7, Louisville—22 votes being necessary. An adjournment was then voted. Mr Frye suggested that the members wished to return to the House of Representatives, where important votes were to be taken on the amnesty question. Senators Howe and Morton and Messrs. William E. Chandler, Gorham and Fulton were appointed a committee to prepare the call for the convention. Mr Van Horn, in the discussion about the place for holding the convention, presented the claims of St. Louis.

In the National Republican committee meeting to-day, when presenting the claims of San Francisco to have the convention held there, Gorham said San Francisco was the most accessible place in the whole railroad system of the United States. It emerged at Omaha from which the line was direct to San Francisco. As to accommodations San Francisco had one hotel which could give each delegate a suite of rooms. Three blocks from this there is a hall which it will seat 10,000, [illegible] further out 8,000 people can be seated to look down on the convention, which can be seated in the center of the Mechanics' Institute building. Then he urged that San Francisco was central. The most distant portion of Alaska is as far west from it as Calais in Maine, was east.

Bills Introduced.

The bill introduced by [illegible] to transfer the management of Indian affairs to the army has been referred to the committee on Indian affairs [illegible] committee, consisting of Sparks, Boone, Morgan, Seelye and Van Voorhees. This sub-committee heard Roberts, of the Indian commission, in opposition to the proposed change. They intend to make a very full examination of the subject.

Luttrell introduced the following [illegible] which were referred: to secure the speedy construction of the Texas Pacific railroad; to provide for the appointment of a Board of Admiralty for the improvement of Mare Island navy yard, [illegible] and Napa creeks.

[illegible] the Kelly introduced a bill [illegible] money for the improvement of [illegible] harbor, [illegible] referred to the committee [illegible].

Pension Agent Nominated.

Charles E. Brown has been nominated by the President for pension agent [illegible].

Border Troubles Committee.

CHICAGO, Jan 13.—The Times' Washington special says the chairman of the committee on Texas border will call this committee together to-day for the purpose of organizing. It is not the intention of the committee to go to Texas to examine evidence [illegible] they are to take [illegible] but they will summon before them the [illegible] who have served in the border and will take evidence [illegible] reports which have been made to the War Department at various times by different commissions and officers who have been sent there. Schleicher thinks the only way to put an end to these border outrages will be to increase the number of troops on the Texas frontier and [illegible] posted along the [illegible] would have the effect to put an end to the [illegible] that has been carried on so successfully for so many years. There is a strip of territory along northern Mexico which is called the free belt. In it no taxes are collected for revenue except [illegible]. The result is it is filled up with a gang of vagabonds whose first business is murder and cattle stealing. The Mexican authorities have encouraged this system. [illegible] in the following way. Some of their number would go to Americans on the Texas border and ask figures for cattle of their owners. When the prices are given they would not agree to give them but would cross the river and make treaties with thieves who would go over and steal the cattle from the owners. People have become so thoroughly exasperated by this complicated condition of affairs that they have resolved they will put an end to it if the government does not. Schleicher thinks sending more troops in Texas is positively essential to save war. The people if unprotected will organize and cross the border and retaliate. Their retaliation will constitute an act of aggression on our part and therefore [illegible] basis for war. He expects to present his report to Congress within the month, and only asks Congress to station more troops than have been allowed—2,000 being the limit asked.

Meeting of the Committee on Appropriations.

WASHINGTON, Jan 13.—The House committee on appropriations held a meeting to-day. The Secretary of State and all the members of the foreign affairs committee were present to consider the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill. Secretary Fish said he thought it inadvisable to make the consolidations or reductions now proposed in regard to the number of our foreign missions. He showed however where changes or reductions can be made with least interference and detriment to the public service. Both the Secretary and Mr Banks showed in case any reductions are made it would be extremely inadequate to reduce the salary of our missionaries to Russia below the amount [illegible] nor that of our representatives at the courts of England and Germany or France. The bill as it stands fixes $12,000 as the salary for the first named and $11,000 each for the latter three. It was ordered that a copy of the bill should be furnished each member of the foreign affairs committee and appropriation committee. Adjourned.

French Contributions to the Centennial.

LONDON, Jan. 13—6:30 A. M.—A dispatch from Paris to the Daily Telegraph says the French Ministry of Works will send to the Philadelphia Exhibition plans of recent public works and the municipal council of Paris will contribute models.

Ministerial Crisis.

A special from Paris says the rumors in regard to the situation of the ministry are various and conflicting. It is asserted that all the ministers will sign the proclamation. Another report has it that Buffet alone is prepared to sign it and that all who do not sign it to-day will be considered as resigning.

PARIS, Jan 13.—The cabinet in council to-day reached an agreement whereby the threatened ministerial modification is averted. The council will reconvene on Monday.

After this decision was arrived at a semi-official announcement was published that M. Buffet would countersign the proclamation reaffirming the programme of February [illegible] 1875. The tenor of this announcement convinces every one that the crisis continues. If the entire cabinet had agreed to keep silence and allowed MacMahon to speak alone Buffet would have no longer a defeat as Leon Say's resignation which [illegible] provoked could not have been accepted. Buffet by countersigning the proclamation gains a double result. He puts himself forward as the inspirer of the President and pledges the Cabinet collectively to the policy set forth in the proclamation. This means that Say and Dufaure can retain office only because they have sacrificed their wills and ideas to those of M. Buffet. Say and Dufaure doubtless yielded because they felt that the prolongation of the crisis was perilous. The peril however has simply changed shape. By means of the proclamation M. MacMahon instead of the Cabinet enters the electoral arena and indorses Buffet's policy, which seems destined to defeat. The principal feature of the programme is to oppose as enemies of order those who demand a revision of the constitution before 1880 or who attack the prerogative of the President.

Say for the Senate.

The Journal Des Debats asserts that Leon Say remains a candidate for the Senate in Seine et Oise on the same list as before.

MacMahon's Proclamation.

The proclamation of President MacMahon countersigned by Buffet was published to-day. In it the President appeals for the support of law, order and good government at the coming general election and hopes the country will secure the necessary repose, after being torn and distracted by agitation, discord and misfortune. He says it is known he did not desire his present power but having been invested with it France could rely on him to exercise it without weakness. He hopes that all aid him and the support of the nation will not fail him in the fulfillment of his mission. The President [illegible] thinks the country's institutions ought not be revised before they are honestly tried. The conservative and truly liberal policy which he always intended to pursue should prevail.

LONDON, Jan 13.—A Paris special says MacMahon's proclamation caused a great sensation. The liberals blame what they call MacMahon's interference and [illegible] of the recall of the assembly are expressed. The fate of the ministry is not decided. Further announcements by the official journals are expected to-morrow.

The Prince Imperial and the Centennial.

LONDON, Jan 13.—A [illegible] dispatch sets at rest all reports to the contrary, by saying that the Prince Imperial Frederick William has decided not to visit the Philadelphia exhibition for several reasons, the most important of which is that the condition of the Emperor's health renders the absence of the heir to the throne [illegible].

CONGRESSIONAL.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Windom presented petitions of [illegible] citizens of Minnesota, Wisconsin, [illegible] and Missouri asking an appropriation of $100,000 for the improvement of the Upper Missouri river. Referred.

The chair laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Interior inclosing one from the commissioner of Indian affairs in answer to the Senate resolution of January 12, 1876 in regard to the expenditure of $800,000 for the support and education of certain Indians. Ordered to be printed and lie on the table.

Christiancy submitted the following:

Resolved, That the judiciary committee be directed to inquire and report to the Senate whether the act of March 1, 1872 is not defective and if so in what particular in making necessary provisions for contingencies which may arise in case of the removal of the President from office or of his death, resignation or inability to discharge the powers and duties of said office, and if in their opinion such exist what further or other legislation is best calculated to remedy the defect, and in that event that they report such a bill or joint resolution as they may consider the case requires. Agreed to.

Mitchell introduced a bill donating the military road running from Astoria to Salem, in the State of Oregon, to the several counties through which it passes. Referred to committee on military affairs.

After the expiration of the morning hour Davis called up the resolution submitted by him yesterday, calling for the appointment of a committee to investigate the books of the treasury department and addressed the Senate thereon.

Davis said in examining the finance reports of the Secretary of the Treasury that have been made for previous years he had discovered many alterations of figures involving large amounts, causing them to differ widely from each other. As to the transactions of the treasury department in some years he quoted extensively from the annual reports of the navy, war, pension and Indian affairs departments making comparisons as to the reports and expenditures for several years and claimed the figures in some years showed an increase in the expenditures and public debt in an aggregate of many millions of dollars and a large decrease in the revenue collections. The amounts were increased or decreased as the occasion might require by addition and subtraction from loans and treasury notes and if there were errors or frauds an opportunity was given to attempt to cover them up. Under that head he also quoted from the public debt statements of several years and claimed there were gross discrepancies between the figures of the Secretary of the Treasury and those of the Register of the Treasury, and that the figures had been changed.

Mr Davis' speech was necessarily largely confined to statistics. Speaking of discrepancies in the annual reports he said: "The figures and charges I have referred to in the official reports are so very large and the amount so enormous that I can hardly believe them myself, but after a careful and earnest examination for the facts in the matter and then to add such information as I could obtain after consultation with different officers of the treasury department I am forced to declare that I can find no satisfactory explanation of them. If there is one, I should be glad to have it. If there is a Senator upon this floor, or an officer of the Government who can make a plain and satisfactory explanation of these charges and discrepancies I hope he will lose no time in making himself heard, for in my judgment, if it is incapable of explanation it is more dangerous than any fault, no matter what the amount."

The facts and figures as stated he believed justified the appointment of a special committee of the Senate to look into the charges and condition of the books and accounts of the Treasury Department and he therefore, asked the passage of the resolution.

After the conclusion of Davis' speech, Merrimon inquired if there were no notes or explanations of these discrepancies.

Davis replied in some cases there were but he had been unable to find how any system of bookkeeping could change the amounts after they had been reported to Congress.

Boutwell said there was nothing new in the statements by Davis. As to the figures drawn from the Treasury Department books he had no observation to make. He would venture to say however that an accurate knowledge of the business of the Treasury Department would dissipate all the difficulties under which the honorable Senator from West Virginia labored, and it occurred to him that Davis in dealing with a great public question as he thought he was might have called on the present Secretary of the Treasury and unfolded to him the difficulties which he complained of and asked him whether or not they were capable of a fair solution. He (Boutwell) was quite sure that it was in the power of the head of that department and that it would have been his disposition to have given any member an opportunity of understanding all the difficulties to which Davis referred. There was nothing Davis had referred to that went to show the books of the Treasury had been changed or tampered with by anybody. The statements presented to Congress and the country are prepared so that any person can examine the books and see that they concur.

Davis asked whether he understood the Senator (Boutwell) to say that the figures in the official reports sent to Congress yearly had not been changed.

Boutwell said the different statements had not been changed. Some of these statements were prepared in the office of the Secretary of the Treasury and showed the business in the control of his office. Others were prepared by the Register and showed the business in the control of his office. Boutwell said when he took charge of the department in 1869 the first thing he discovered was that the books of the department did not represent the actual amount of the public debt outstanding. This arose from a succession of events since the organization of the department. He then explained at length the manner of doing business and said that in 1869 the books showed an apparent discrepancy of $116,000,000, when in truth there was no such discrepancy. He mentioned, as items tending to show such discrepancy, the debt of the States assumed by the general government amounting to $[illegible],000,000, the Texas indemnity fund, etc. Again [illegible] six per cent loan was authorized by Congress when Mr Chase, Secretary of the Treasury, was unable to negotiate at that rate of interest, and the consequence was $[illegible],000,000 worth of bonds were issued on which 7 per cent actually was paid. The amount received was less than $16,000,000. Up to 1869 the Register of the Treasury was only required to keep an account of the public debt. No account had been kept in the office of the Secretary. It was then ordered that an account be kept in the latter office. He argued it was only by experience and investigation or by knowledge from practice and experience one could understand the business of accounting. If certain bonds were presented to the register of the treasury [illegible] day for signature he would sign them and immediately charge the public debt with the par value of these bonds, and if the register should then be called upon for a statement the debt would appear greater than it really was to the amount of the bond signed. He said there always would be a difference in the statements of offices, but with the two statements the exact truth could be traced out. This statement about which so much complaint is now made was instituted in 1869 as a check upon the register's office. If the differences in these accounts did not exist confusion and fraud between the different branches of the treasury department would be shown. An analysis of the statements will never fail to show that the facts on which they were based were the same.

Boutwell yielded to Edmunds who moved that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

Davis inquired if hereafter it would come up as unfinished business at the next meeting of the Senate.

The chair replied in the affirmative and the Senate went into executive session.

Sargent moved when it adjourn to-day it be to meet Monday.

Agreed to and the Senate adjourned.

House.

WASHINGTON, Jan 13.

All the [illegible] to the House of Representatives and [illegible] to them were [illegible] to-day [illegible] the close of the debate on the amnesty question.

[illegible] offered a resolution instructing the committee on [illegible] in the Department of Justice to inquire into the appointment of special [illegible] by the government, the fees paid them and the [illegible] fees paid to [illegible] attorneys. [illegible] of a full knowledge of what has been [illegible] in that connection. Adopted.

Whitehouse, from the committee on naval affairs, reported a resolution calling on the Secretary of the Navy for particulars of the expenditure of the appropriations made since July, 1869 for testing [illegible]. Adopted.

Bennett, of Idaho, offered a resolution instructing the Judiciary committee to inquire into the expediency of [illegible] into the constitution [illegible] the citizens of [illegible] Territories the right to vote for President and Vice President.

[illegible]

[illegible] were not seeking to throw any other element of an inflammable character into the politics of the day. Whatever of that kind had flown into the discussion by the [illegible] of the gentleman from Pennsylvania and those who stood with him. It was not his proposition to punish but it was to honor. And while he (Blaine) and those with him disclaimed any intention or design to punish Jefferson Davis they resisted the proposition to honor him. He passed on to the discussion of the question with regard to the treatment of Union prisoners and who was to blame for breaking the exchange of prisoners. The speech of the gentleman from Ohio yesterday had left him literally nothing to say. The subject was exhausted; the argument was unanswerable, and he undertook to say that as yet no gentleman had answered one fact which the gentleman from Ohio had alleged and that no one could answer it. Blaine should not therefore at any length rest on that point, but there was one allegation as to the point in history which he felt it his duty not merely as a member of the Republican party, but as a citizen of this American Union to resist and resent, and that was the allegation with regard to the manner Confederate prisoners were treated in the prisons of the Union. The gentleman from Georgia (Hill) had spoken this sentence in his speech: "That with all the horrors which you have made such noise about as occurring at Andersonville, greater horrors occurred in prisons where our troops were held," and I could but admire the [illegible] and [illegible] with which the gentleman communicated the decision. Hill compared with his later pretensions to unionism. It was certainly flinging the shadow of the dead Confederacy a long way over the dial of the national House of Representatives, and I think the gentleman from New York (Cox) fell into a little of the same line. He says: "And the atrocities of Andersonville do not compare with the atrocities of Elmira, Camp Douglas and Fort Delaware, and of all the atrocities at Andersonville and Elmira the Confederate authorities stand acquitted."

Hill, who occupied a front seat on the Republican side, arose and said: I certainly did no such thing. I stated I brought no charge against anybody, but that according to the gentleman's logic the result followed.

Blaine.—That is not the report of the speech as he delivered it.

Hill—You are only quoting one sentence out of its connection.

Blaine—I beg pardon. I am speaking of it as it appeared in the Washington Chronicle and in the associated press report. I do not pretend to be bound by any version of it which may appear hereafter in the Congressional records, because I observe the gentleman from New York (Cox) spoke one speech and published another. I suppose the gentleman from Georgia will do the same. I admit he has a difficult role to play—to keep himself in line with the New York Democracy and keep himself in proper position for a Democratic candidate as Senator from Georgia, and it is a very difficult thing to reconcile the two. [Laughter on the Republican side.] The "barnburner" Democrats in 1848 found it very hard to adhere to their anti-slavery principles in New York, and still support Pierce's administration. And Mr Greeley, with the inimitable humor which was characteristic of him, said they had a hard row to straddle, and that they were like militia on parade day on Broadway who found it almost an impossibility to follow the music and keep clear of the omnibuses, and that is the case with the gentleman from Georgia. He has been trying to keep step to the music of the Union and dodge the fire eating constituents in Georgia. I will read another quotation from his speech: "Our prisoners suffered in Federal hands, and we know how. If we choose to tell, thousands of our poor fellows came home from Elmira, from Delaware and other places, with fingers frozen off and their teeth fallen out." Was that in the line of what I had said or was it a simple assertion from the gentleman from Georgia?

Hill said these were the necessary incidents to all prisons.

Blaine—Do I understand the gentleman now to back down from that assertion?

Hill—I saw them with my own eyes.

Blaine—The gentleman from Elmira district (Walker), and I honor him for it, was not held in the leash by party fidelity and by southern sympathy, but came out like a man and vindicated his constituents. There are on that side of the house two gentlemen who represent in part the constituencies that surround Camp Douglas—I refer to Caulfield and Harrison—and I ask them to say whether to the best of their knowledge and belief there was any cruel treatment of prisoners at Camp Douglas, and I yield to them for that purpose.

Caulfield, rising on the Democratic side of the house, said—The gentleman has seen fit to call on me for my testimony in regard to the treatment of prisoners at Camp Douglas. I do not wish him to suppose from my silence that I fully acquiesce in what he has said.

Blaine (interrupting)—In what who has said, the gentleman from Georgia or myself?

Caulfield—In what the gentleman from Maine has said.

Blaine (sneeringly)—Oh. (Laughter.)

Caulfield—I rose to say that there were hardships in Camp Douglas which were experienced by prisoners from the South, but that those hardships were incidental to the climate and the emergency of imprisonment.

Hill (in a low tone)—That's right. In that I agree with you.

Caulfield—I do not however, say there were not certain instances of cruelty which occurred in that camp to my knowledge, but they were not of such number or character as to make a general charge against the officers of that camp.

Hill (in a low tone)—That's right. I make none.

Caulfield—I remember some instances myself. I happened to be one of a number appointed to ameliorate the sufferings of the prisoners at Camp Douglass. They were brought there in winter weather. It was cold, and it was impossible to make them comfortable, and there was a great deal of suffering, but he regarded that suffering as only incidental to the circumstances which surrounded them. At times every effort was made to make them comfortable both on the part of the State and of the government, but there were some cruelties inflicted there to my own knowledge. I do not think it would be fair to charge the government with that. They were chargeable to the inhumanity of certain individuals in charge of them.

Hill—That is all that I meant.

Blaine (to Caulfield)—Will you state whether the prisoners who came from Fort Donelson did not share the same quarters and have exactly the same accommodations as the troops had who left Camp Douglass, which was their camp, and went to Fort Donelson, changing places with the prisoners?

Caulfield—My memory does not serve me.

Blaine (ironically)—Oh! the gentleman does not recollect that Camp Douglas was made for Union soldiers and was the great recruiting camp of northern Illinois.

Caulfield—Now that you bring it to my recollection I think the fact was so.

Blaine (more ironically)—Oh! my, what a recollection! That is equal to the recollection of the gentleman from Georgia who did not recollect the other day whether he offered the resolution which I read.

Caulfield (severely)—My dear sir, I want you to understand that when I state what my recollection is [illegible] certain point I do not wish you to stand on this floor and question my veracity.

Blaine—I said it was a strange recollection. I do not question the gentleman's veracity at all.

Caulfield—Then if it is a strange recollection I am not responsible for it.

Blaine—But I say this: if the gentleman does not recollect that Camp Douglas was the recruiting place from which those great, noble, gallant regiments went out who represented Illinois [illegible] many battle fields, he is the only man in all Illinois who does not.

Caulfield—But sir—

Blaine (waving him down)—That is all I desire.

Caulfield—persistently—My dear sir, you called me to the witness stand and you cannot discredit me, because I do not discredit myself. I have the right to answer your question fully, and say when you first spoke of the question as to whether atrocities had been committed in Camp Douglas, my attention was naturally attracted to the time when those men were prisoners there and was not drawn to the point as to whether that Camp was first filled by Federal soldiers or not. But now that the gentleman has drawn my attention to the fact, I say I think it is so. I may be permitted to add that the argument which he made against my recollection is about as strong as any arguments the gentleman has addressed before the House to-day or the day before.

Harrison also rose on the Democratic side and said he thought his colleague was wrong and that the Camp Douglas camp where the prisoners were retained was not the same as the Camp Douglas where the volunteers were. Many buildings had been erected for that emergency. When the Fort Donaldson prisoners were brought up, the weather had been exceeding cold and there was no sufficiency of houses. But the people of Chicago came forward and attended to the comforts of the prisoners. He would state further that there were charges made in the papers, charges which any [illegible] witnesses could have sworn to, that there were cruel treatments at Camp Douglas, but these cruel statements were not believed.

Blaine—I didn't yield for a speech from the gentleman.

Harrison—You asked me a question and I have answered.

Blaine—No, the gentleman has not answered my question. [illegible] touching the question.

Harrison—The gentleman [illegible] asked a question, and my silence would have been an acknowledgment that he was right.

Blaine—I asked the gentleman whether [illegible] at Camp Douglas.

Harrison—No sir.

Blaine—That is enough. Now I will [illegible] other gentleman on this side of the house from that neighborhood.

Henderson, rising on the Republican side, said the gentleman on the other side was mistaken in the [illegible] he had just [illegible] to his own knowledge the rebel prisoners were confined at Camp Douglas, in the same camp from which the Union soldiers had moved out.

Harrison—But they were not always in the same barracks.

Blaine—Oh no, the barracks were increased for rebel prisoners. They were [illegible] for them.

Henderson—I have no doubt but that the rebel prisoners there were as well treated as any prisoners ever were on God's green earth.

Blaine—I do not care of course to conduct this case as if it was in court and call more witnesses, but I admit there is a cloud of witnesses who are honorable gentlemen on that side of the house whom I will not indelicately mention by name who know this personally. Their relations and mine are most kindly and friendly. They have been in Union prisons in the North and who I shall assume by their silence assent to the statement I made.

Jones of Kentucky rose.

Blaine, addressing him, was the gentleman one of them?

Jones—I was and am proud of it. The gentleman referred to me and I now ask his courtesy for a few moments.

Blaine—Well, sir, I will hear you.

Jones—I was one of those gentlemen, Mr Speaker, who had the honor of being a prisoner of the [illegible].

Blaine—In what form?

Jones—I will tell you if you will allow me time.

Blaine—Tell me in what fort you were.

Jones—I was not a prisoner of war.

Blaine (contemptuously)—Oh.

Jones—But a civil prisoner taken to Camp Chase.

Blaine—I am not dealing with that class.

Jones—You were asking for facts of history and I want—

Blaine (interrupting)—No, sir. I am not dealing with that class of prisoners at all.

Jones—I deprecate this unfortunate debate, but when the gentleman from Maine specially rises and appeals to the gentlemen on this side of the house for the facts of history he must not object to hearing them.

Blaine—If the house agrees to extend my time, I will let the gentleman talk.

Randall—I object to the time being extended.

Blaine—Then I decline to yield.

Jones—I appeal to the gentleman from Pennsylvania to do justice and let me be heard.

Blaine—I was not referring to the gentleman from Kentucky at all and I did not know he had ever been a prisoner.

Mills—I ask the gentleman from Maine to withdraw his remark that if the gentlemen on this side who were Confederate prisoners did not rise and deny his statement their silence would be construed as an acknowledgment of its truth.

Blaine—If any gentleman on that side desires to contradict it I will yield to him.

Davis—I was a prisoner of war at Fort Delaware.

[Blaine, making a motion as if he wouldn't yield the floor any longer.]

Davis—He asked for the facts and when the facts come out he will not have them.

Banks made a point of order that after Blaine's challenge to the other side he had no right to decline to yield, but the Speaker overruled it.

Blaine—Let them all rise and dissent. I don't object, but I do not intend to yield my whole hour.

Mills—It is not the desire of this side to reopen any of the wounds of the late war. We have sat here and listened to charges but we do not desire to answer them or to have anything to do with them. We hope however our silence will not be recorded against us as an admission of what we know to be false.

Cooke of Georgia—I was one of those who were wounded and crippled.

The Speaker—Does the gentleman from Maine yield any further?

Blaine—I do not.

Cooke—Then take back what you said.

Blaine—Yes, if that will do you any good. If you may all over there stand and dissent, I will wait for you to do that.

Randall—We are not at school now.

Blaine—If you are you are a most unruly set of scholars. Now I desire to call attention to the speech of the gentleman from New York (Cox), who, as I said, delivered one speech and published another.

Cox—I did not change anything in my speech.

Blaine—I say the gentleman made one speech and published another.

Cox (contemptuously)—Go on with your talk.

Blaine—The gentleman talks about the committee on the conduct of the war being a humbugging committee. In a debate in this House on the 21st of October, 1864, the gentleman from Ohio said: "This resolution provides for the infliction on rebel prisoners who may be in your hands the same inhuman, barbarous treatment inflicted on our soldiers. It does not follow because the rebels have made brutes and fiends of themselves we should do likewise. No man will stand here and say he could reduce these prisoners thrown into our hands to the same condition exhibited by these skeletons. It does not follow because our soldiers are treated in the way represented, and no doubt faithfully represented, &c." I will now again ask the gentleman from Georgia if he recollects whether he was the author of the resolution that I read the other day.

Hill—I stated day before yesterday that I did not recollect being the author of that resolution. I have no doubt the resolution was introduced, and I will state that at the time there was a belief in the Confederacy—

Blaine—I did not yield for a speech. I just want to know whether you were the author of the resolution?

Hill—I have the right to answer.

Blaine—The gentleman has no right whatever to make a speech. If my time were extended, I would not have any objection.

Hill—(Sitting down.)—That resolution applied to spies.

Blaine—(Contemptuously)—Oh, nonsense! It provided that every person pretending to be a soldier, and the gentleman says it related to spies.

(Hill—Yes, pretended to be.)

Blaine—(contemptuously)—Oh, my! the gentleman admitted he offered, from the judiciary committee, the resolution that every white who should act as commissioned, or non-commissioned officer of militia regiments should, if captured, suffer death; did that relate to spies too?

Hill—uneasily—Will you allow me to answer?

Blaine—Yes. Did that relate to spies?

Hill—(repeating)—Will you allow me to answer?

Blaine—No sir, I will not. Another resolution was offered that every commissioned or non-commissioned officer of the enemy, who shall incite the slaves to rebellion, shall, if captured, suffer death; did that relate to spies? I have searched in vain for anything in the world that rivals that, and I did find, and I have it among my minutes, the proclamation of Valmaseda, Captain General of Cuba, recalled to Spain because of his accursed cruelties against the inhabitants of the island of Cuba, and the worst thing of all the atrocities laid to his charge was his proclamation that every man [illegible] over 15 years of age found away from his house and not being able to give a satisfactory reason therefor should suffer death. Valmaseda copied it from the resolution of the gentleman from Georgia.

Hill (in his seat)—That is not true; there is no resemblance in it.

Blaine—We are told all allegations against Jeff Davis should be forgiven because they are of the dead past.

Hill (in his seat)—I am alive—put me on trial.

Blaine—We are told we should not revive them. There should be nothing in the world that would be calculated to disturb the peaceful serenity of the Centennial year; that every motion of this kind is calculated to do that very injurious thing. The very last declaration we have from Davis authentically is in the "Life" which the gentleman read from the other day. In this text book, in reply to the remark of some person that the cause of the Confederacy was lost, Mr Davis said: "It appears so, but the principle for which we contended is bound to reassert itself though it may be at another time, and in another form." I have here the Atlanta Constitution of January [illegible], 1875, in which there is reported a speech made by hon. B. H. Hill, and the paper says it is the grandest speech he ever delivered.

Hill—That is a mistake.

Blaine—I know it is. I know the gentleman has delivered many grand speeches, but the editor says it was the grandest of all. Let me quote: "Fellow citizens, I look upon the contest of 1876 not only as the most important that has ever occurred in American history, but as the most important that has occurred in the history of the world; for if the people of this country [illegible] be roused to give an unanimous vote against the Republican party, it will put itself in power by precisely the same means the President has taken in Louisiana, and the people are powerless to prevent it unless they go to war. If we fail with the ballot box in 1876 by reason of force, a startling proposition will present itself to the American people. I hope Northern people have had a sufficient subsidence of passion to settle this question fairly, but if we must have war [illegible] his voice is still for war."

Hill—Never.

Blaine, continuing to quote: "If we must have war, if we can't preserve the constitution by ballot, if force is to defeat the ballot, and if war must come—God forbid it shall!—but if folly and wickedness and love of power [illegible] that America should save her constitution by blood, let it come, I am ready."

Hill, rising—Will the gentleman allow me to say a word?

Blaine—Not a word.

Hill, sneeringly—Oh!

Blaine—In another speech made by that gentleman in May he impressed on the colored men of the country the truth that if the folly and wickedness of the Republican party was to result in war they (the colored people) would be the greatest sufferers; that if peace was preserved they were safe. But just as sure as one war had freed them just so sure another would re-enslave them. That, said Blaine, was precisely the talk we had here by Toombs and others before the rebellion. Oh yes! You were for war then. The gentleman in his speech the other day said the Union was an unmixed blessing, that is provided the Democratic party can rule it.

Hill—That is a fact.

Blaine—But if the Republican party is to rule it he is for war.

Hill—Only if they undertake to rule it by force.

At this hour [illegible] we are compelled to go to press and will publish the remainder to-morrow.

The Steamship Investigation.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan 13.—The legislative committee on commerce and navigation continued its investigation into the condition of steamships of this port to-day. The evidence of some mechanics was taken to the effect that several ships on the coast are in a very bad condition, decayed and unseaworthy. It will be attempted to be proven that some half a dozen vessels were purchased by Goodall, Nelson & Perkins Steamship Co. from the Pacific Mail Co. at a price less than the amount it would cost to have built one of them. The inquiry will be resumed this afternoon.

Bank of California Affairs.

Another chapter in the secret history of the failure of the Bank of California has come to light. The Examiner last evening published an extract from a letter from the San Francisco correspondent of the New York Sun, dated Dec 24, 1875, to the effect that Burling Bros. had commenced proceedings against the trustees of the Bank of California, charging them with such negligence and misconduct in the management of the bank as to render them personally liable. The complaint was prepared by Hall McAllister, and among the material allegations were that Ralston had fraudulently over issued nine thousand shares of stock of the bank, and had allowed sundry loans and overdrafts on the bank to an amount aggregating about $2,000,000 to $4,000,000, and had appropriated to his own use $4,500,000, and that when the trustees of the bank saw the complaint they settled with Burling Bros. on their own terms. On inquiry from competent authorities, the facts in the case appear to be that Burling Bros. had borrowed money for Ralston, giving their own notes for the amount and taking bank stock as security. When the bank failed the Burlings found themselves owing several hundred thousand dollars on those transactions without security. The stock of the bank being then of no value, there was a disposition shown on the part of the bank authorities to leave them to carry the burden. They accordingly brought suit as above described, on which a compromise was offered, Sharon, to whom the Ralston estate had been turned over, settling with Burling Bros. at seventy-five cents on the dollar, leaving them to shoulder the balance of the indebtedness. The suit never came into court, and has been kept very quiet until the present time, but few being aware that proceedings had ever been commenced.

PIG STICKING IN INDIA.

In view of the failure which the Prince of Wales witnessed in India of the attempt to spear wild hogs, the Saturday Review of Dec 11th, gives an account of the more excellent way by which experienced hunters in other parts of India attain far different results. It says:

There is a good deal of difference between the sport as practiced in the Bengal Presidency and in those of Bombay and Madras. In the former the spear is about six and a half feet in length, and the sportsman, grasping it about eighteen inches from the top, which is heavily weighted with lead, drives it neatly and sharply into the body of the animal. The men of Madras and Bombay use a spear of ten feet or more in length and couch it like a lance. The great object is naturally to induce the boar to break cover and take to the open. If the patch of grass, reed or scrub be small, this is easily effected. All that is necessary is half a dozen elephants, with 20 beaters on foot, uttering some Asiatic cry which answers to "Hie cock, cock," and a fine burst is the result. But where the jungle is so large that the boar can dodge the elephants or break back other expedients must be put in force. Crackers and squibs are thrown into the denser thickets, the line of elephants must be made stronger and more compact, drums are beaten, and mingle with the yells of the footmen, and occasionally, as a last resource, some mild sportsman who prefers the gun to the spear and the howdah to the saddle, is directed from his seat on an elephant's back, to dislodge the boar, when he can get a sight of him, by a charge of No. 7 or 8 shot skillfully lodged just under the tail. The boar is perfectly well aware that a thick covert is generally his best security and the employment of the last expedient is the surest way of convincing him to the contrary.

When the company is not large and the animals are not very numerous, three or four men will race together for the spear, it being a universal rule that the honor belongs to the man who draws "first blood." The result depends on a variety of considerations. The boar driven out of one patch will endeavor to gain another cover. If the friendly shelter is about a mile off there is no reason to expect that the animal will turn and charge, unless it be one of an unusually savage nature. If the second cover is two or three miles from the first, and the beast is one of average courage and fierceness, a charge may be expected as soon as breath is scant and weight begins to tell. We rarely ever met with a boar thirty inches in height that would not distance for the first quarter or half mile the very best Arab that was ever bought for the Indian market. But after a while wind and training prevail and as the sportsman comes to closer quarters it is impossible to say whether he will spear the tired pig from behind or whether the animal, like Macaulay's British lion at Agincourt, will turn to bay in wrath, and will come down on the nearest hunter with bristles erect, tail as stiff as a ramrod, foaming jaws and a series of short and defiant grunts. One maxim approved by all hog hunters of every degree is that the

THE FRENCH

The present condition of the French people is not enviable. Their capital and several other cities are still in a state of siege, their present government is divided against itself, and the character of their future government, whether it will be democratic or despotic, undetermined. A retrospective view of the French nation and a consideration of their national characteristics do not encourage us to hope for the establishment of a republican form of government in that country. All nations are not alike, and because a democratic form of government seems well adapted to the character and necessities of our own countrymen, it by no means follows that is the best, or even a good form of government for our differently constituted and more excitable Gallic brethren. Twice has France attempted the establishment of republican institutions among her people. Both times the experiment has resulted in the usurpation of absolute power by an unscrupulous leader. And the people were happier and more contented after they had been enslaved than before.

Great and glorious as is the French nation there are some pages of her history on which are recorded acts of the wildest folly and crimes of the darkest dye committed in a futile attempt to establish a republic, by men who, as individuals, were amiable, intelligent and learned, and some of whom afterwards, under the control of a single powerful will, established a world wide reputation for ability and skill.

That serious, dutiful, reverential, persevering character, which is the heritage of the Anglo-Saxon people, the French nation does not possess. All historians, from Julius Cæsar to the lively author of the "Notes on Paris," himself a Frenchman, describe the French as gallant, versatile and ardent beyond all other peoples, but as destitute of profound and immutable convictions. To be skeptical, to want reverence for the past, to laugh and to jest even about the most sacred matters, is the nature of the volatile Gaul.

"They are wedded," says an eminent modern writer who has closely and philosophically studied them, "to no political ideas, but dallying with all, they pass in a few brief years, through all the phases, in which political society has ever exhibited itself amongst men, though never wanting 'pure ideas' with which to polish periods, and to darken counsel, about each." Yet their faults, as a nation, are not those of men abandoned, or brutal by nature. They are impulsive, easily carried away by excitement, and liable to be made the dupes of demagogues like Marat or Bourbaki, or the slaves of powerful despots like Louis XIV or the first Napoleon.

They accept without hesitation whatever may be the logical consequence of premises which they believe are well established and intent upon establishing a Utopia according to the principles of the Social Compact, inaugurate the Commune. The sheerest nonsense in the garb of sublime abstraction continually rules them. While forbidding as superstitious, the worship of the Almighty God, they hastened to bow down in adoration of Reason personated by a half-clad young woman perched upon a pedestal in the Place de la Concorde. And even worse,—while proclaiming absolute liberty of thought and action they sent Vergniaud and Madame Roland to the guillotine in 1793 and shot the Archbishop of Paris in 1871 for a difference of opinion.

Given a certain task, whether it be to fight, to compile a code of laws, to instruct, to practice the arts of diplomacy or to excel in literature, arts and manufactures, the French are equal in the performance of it to the people of any nation as long as there is a strong will and a strong arm to guide and control them. Accustomed for so many centuries to be governed, to have no will of their own, to yield obedience and being by nature speculative, fond of novelty and of innovations,—whenever the power exercised over them passes into their own hands, they seem desirous of subverting instead of improving, of blotting out all the past the good and bad alike and starting afresh with a new plan, about which, in their ardor, they do not stop to consider whether it is good or adapted to their wants. Hence their two former failures. Whether they have learned enough from them to be able to establish and maintain a republic now remains to be seen.

Mr Gorham, member of the Republican National Committee, in advocating the claims of San Francisco to be the place for holding the National Republican Convention [illegible] made the remarkable statement that San Francisco [illegible] central position in the country. That the extreme western point of Alaska was at as great a distance west of San Francisco as [illegible] in Maine was east of that [illegible] examination of the map shows that this state[illegible] the extreme western point of Alaska [illegible] the distance from San Francisco [illegible]

THE PROCESS OF PRINTING TREASURY NOTES

[Philadelphia Times]

[illegible] checks have been devised and are strictly enforced. In the next stage, printing the backs of notes the closest supervision is exercised and the strictest account required. For instance in printing the backs of 50-cent notes, which is done by Philadelphia Bank Note Co, the sheets are counted at least eight times and a register is kept of each count. In this establishment over forty presses are continually employed in printing the backs of notes required to replace a worn out currency. The paper is received in sheets of sufficient size to take an impression from plates on which sixteen engravings of the note have been made. The number sent in the package from the paper factory is not stated as the box is sealed with the government stamp. A return is made by the party furnishing and the party receiving the paper of the exact amount without the knowledge of each other's count, so that the possibility of any fraud upon the Treasury is prevented. As soon as each sheet is accounted for the paper is sent into the wetting room. The chief of that department before he acknowledges the receipt of any package requires that the number of sheets be ascertained by one of his assistants. After the paper has undergone the soaking process it is again inspected and an account opened with each printer who, in turn, must furnish a receipt for every sheet thus given him. Then on a hand press with a girl adjusting the sheet to the plate and to the press the printer strikes off the impressions one by one until one hundred have been printed. The sheets are then transferred to the drying department and again counted, racks are arranged in a warm room so as to expedite this work, and in a few hours the sheets are taken to the counting room, being twice counted in the change. Then they are returned to the superintendent of the printing department, Mr John McGuire, under whose management all these intricate details have been followed out and the notes packed up for shipment to Washington where the face is printed and the seal of the United States Treasury affixed. It is therefore safe to calculate that before a fifty cent note reaches the public it will have been counted at least twenty two times. So it is with all the currency afloat. The appliances for carrying on this work must be complete and nothing but the best of workmanship is allowed by the government in printing the circulating medium. The designing and engraving rooms with their delicate machinery and skilled labor are marvels and the system of checks employed throughout the various branches is such as to render the consummation of any frauds upon the company or government an utter impossibility.

CAPTAIN BOYTON'S SWIM DOWN THE RHINE

After giving swimming exhibitions at various other places in Europe Capt Boyton went to Basle, in Switzerland, with the intention of taking a long run on the Rhine. At this point it was expected a boat could be procured for accompanying friends, but the current there was found so rapid that it would be unsafe to venture in a boat. So they went on to Strasbourg by rail. The Captain however started from Basle at 5 o'clock one October morning though the river was rushing on at a tremendous rate. At the time there was a freshet running and the Captain thinks that for a time he must have gone at the rate of twelve knots an hour. About 9 A M a peculiar thick fog came on and the swimmer had to keep on at full speed, utterly unable to see where he was going. Coming suddenly near a high bank where some men were working he rose up and sounded a horn he carried. This was intended for a friendly salute but the workmen were terrified and dropping their implements they rushed up the bank to get away from the strange looking monster in the water. At noon the swimmer found himself whirling round and round about in a regular whirlpool. By working steadily into the outer circles he contrived after half a dozen revolutions to work into smooth water and so moved on. Assistance was coming in the form of a boat sent out by some Prussian officers, who were superintending the construction of a pontoon bridge near by and so the Captain effected his escape. One of the chief difficulties of this novel trip on the Rhine was the shooting of these pontoon bridges which are made up of boats standing about five feet apart. To avoid collision with these required no little skill as the current occasionally carried on the swimmer at a furious rate of speed. Whenever Captain Boyton in the first part of his travels spied a man in a boat and approached him with the view of questioning him as to the distance from one place to another the occupant of the boat invariably fled incontinently as if his questioner were a sprite from the neighborhood of the Black Forest or even the old gentleman in person out for exercise. All the first day until about eight P M Captain Boyton kept on the river making Strasbourg at that time after fifteen hours immersion. Here a slight accident occurred. Near the railroad bridge which spans the Rhine at Strasbourg is a pontoon bridge which the swimmer on account of the darkness did not notice until contact with one of its boats sent him under water. At the time he struck the Captain was in the act of blowing his horn to announce his arrival but his notes were cut short by the collision which resulted in driving him completely under the boat. He soon came to the surface however comparatively unhurt and sounded the horn again. It was quite dark at the time, but when the Captain reached the shore a large number had gathered in expectation of his arrival. He was admirably received at Strasbourg, feasted and dined freely. Here a flatboat was purchased and the guests embarked to accompany the swimmer. On a Friday afternoon at three o'clock, Captain Boyton entered the water again and remained until half past three o'clock A M the following Sunday, making a run of 105 miles to Mayence. This was a more fatiguing experience, the captain says, than the crossing of the Channel. At Mannheim and Worms the swimmer was received with distinction. Cannon were fired as he passed and the Mayor of Worms came down to the riverside to greet him and open a bottle of Liebfraumilch. American flags were hoisted upon many public and private buildings and waved from boats along the river. A great many telegrams of congratulation were received also. So ran the story to the [illegible] Cologne. A flattering reception was everywhere accorded.

Captain Boynton weighs now about 180 pounds having lost about forty pounds during his exhibitions. Among the tokens of recognition received by the captain are the large gold medal of the French Society [illegible] gold medal from the city of Dublin and a testimonial with the American flag and Dublin coat of arms worked in silk and Irish poplin, the Belgium Life Saving [illegible] gold medal, the bronze medal of Germany, a silver medal from Amsterdam, a wreath of laurels in frosted silver from the ladies of W[illegible] silver cup and pedestal from the city of Birt[illegible] [illegible] Christ Hospital [illegible] life saving medal, the London [illegible] Club medals, the city of [illegible] gold medal, an appropriately engraved [illegible] plate from Birmingham [illegible] watch [illegible] many other medals [illegible]

PLUMMER FRUIT DRYER.

AS A PROOF OF WHAT I HAVE HERETOFORE stated to the people of Oregon I give below a letter from the Plummer Fruit Drying Co of East Portland. After the close of business of 1875 fully endorsing it after using it one entire season, and as a proof to substantiate what they say they now contemplate putting up another Dryer of the same capacity of the one they now have which will increase their capacity to five hundred bushels of apples per day. Having now located here in Portland for the purpose of supplying the demand for Fruit Dryers in Oregon and Washington Territory I can supply these dryers at a cost of from $2,000 to $4,000 according to capacity. Warranted to dry from 8 to 18 bushels of apples per hour at a small cost for labor and fuel. These machines being so cheap and simple in construction they cannot fail to supersede all other known machines. I would also say to the fruit growers that I have invented a Machine (and am now waiting for a patent) that will cut and spread the fruit on the trays with a very small amount of labor. I also have invented a Peach Parer that is on an entirely new principle, paring soft as well as hard, does its work well, with great speed and slices and pits the fruit ready for the Dryer in the best possible manner and at a great saving in quantity of fruit.

FRUIT DRYER TESTIMONIAL.

EAST PORTLAND, Jan 4th 1876

MR W S PLUMMER—Dear Sir: As this is a time when all are much interested in Fruit Drying we think that in justice to you and for the information of the public it is but right and proper that we should give all the information that we can. Now after having operated your Dryer during this season we feel warranted in saying that for the amount of money invested we still believe as we did from the start, that your Dryer is the best Dryer yet introduced into this country. The capacity of the Dryer we find to be about 8 (eight) bushels per hour. The Dried fruit we claim to be as good as any though perhaps not as much bleached as the Alden Fruit and we are satisfied that we can produce Dried Fruit at less expense than the Alden. The stockholders of our Company manifested their confidence in the Plummer Dryer at our meeting last Saturday by a unanimous vote to increase the capital stock $12,000 (twelve thousand dollars) for the purpose of adding one more Dryer to the present one, and making other improvements for next season. We will further say that we believe that by an improvement made by the patentee in the Heater and Fan that there will be an increase of capacity and a saving of Fuel.

FRIDAY MORNING JANUARY 14 1876

CITY.

ARRESTED FOR ARSON.—Three men named respectively Thomas Shields J H Nicholson and Frederick Payne were arrested yesterday by officers Kelly and Gritzmacher accused of the crime of arson. These persons reside on the Sandy, about seven miles northeast of this city. Tuesday afternoon an attempt was made to destroy, by fire, the school house which stands in school district No 30. However the fire was timely discovered and extinguished before the building was fairly ignited. On inspecting the house it was ascertained that a quantity of kerosene oil had been sprinkled about the interior of the building the floor in many places being completely saturated with the inflammable article. It seems that there has been some trouble in that neighborhood in relation to school matters and from certain suspicious circumstances connected with the attempt to burn the building it is thought the persons mentioned are the parties who committed the offense. Information of the commission of the crime was lodged Wednesday before Judge Adams implicating Shields, Nicholson and Payne as being the guilty parties. Warrants were issued for their arrest and placed in the hands of the officers. Procuring a team and wagon yesterday morning officers Kelly and Gritzmacher started for the Sandy. They found the persons accused of the crime without difficulty arrested them and brought them to this city. They are now lodged in jail awaiting a preliminary hearing. We have not learned any of the particulars of the affair further than those above given or of the strength and conclusiveness of the evidence tending to fasten the guilt on the persons charged. There appears to have been a sort of neighborhood row over school matters and it is claimed these parties made an unsuccessful attempt to burn down the school house. Shields is quite an old man and has resided on a farm in that vicinity since 1857. So far as we have been able to ascertain he has heretofore borne a good reputation. Nicholson and Payne are both young men and we understand they have resided in that section only a short time. The building, it is stated has escaped without damage, owing to the timely discovery of the fire and the prompt efforts made to extinguish it. This morning the defendants will have a preliminary hearing in Police Court, when further facts will be elicited.

LARCENY FROM A DWELLING.—John McLane, a sailor belonging to the ship Border [illegible] was arrested at an early hour yesterday morning by officer Gritzmacher. He was found by the officer with a bundle of clothes under his arm making toward the foot of Main street where his ship is lying. McLane was hailed and asked where he obtained the clothes but he failed to give a satisfactory answer and was escorted to jail by the arresting officer. On reaching the jail, the bundle was found to consist of two shawls two water proof cloaks and some other articles of female apparel. It turned out that the clothes belonged to Mrs Dyer, residing at the corner of Third and Washington streets, and that they were stolen from the house. About 4 o clock yesterday morning the thief entered Mr Dyer's house through one of the doors which was left unlocked, helped himself to what clothes he could find, and then quietly decamped. The stolen articles were readily identified by the owner and restored. This morning the case will be examined into at police court. From all the circumstances of the case, the presumption of guilt amounts almost to a certainty and there are good reasons to predict that McLane will join Mr Tabbot's Raccoon brigade, as the offense charged is that of larceny from a dwelling.

THE LATE MRS HELMUTH.—Thomas Quinn, writing from Walla Walla to the Victoria Standard of the 12th, says "By an article in the Echo, a paper published in Olympia, I notice that the captain of the steamer Goliah is charged with robbing the body of Mrs Helmuth, a passenger on the ill fated steamer Pacific, of money and jewelry. In order that no wrong may be done innocent parties I desire to say, through your columns that Mrs Helmuth took from here $10,000 mostly in gold; that said amount was placed in her satchel I myself carrying it to the depot here; that $2,500 of that money was by her deposited in the Bank of British Columbia at Portland, and that she took the remainder with her. From my intimate knowledge of Mrs. Helmuth's habits and customs I believe that the money remained in the satchel and that the body of Mrs H could not have been robbed of that amount, but that if ever the satchel be discovered the money will be found in it. The jewelry found on Mrs Helmuth has been received here and it was all the jewelry Mrs. H owned. I offer this statement from a conscientious motive that a slander may not be the reward of those kind hearted men who assisted in saving the living and returning the dead to their relatives."

SUCCESSFUL TEACHER.—Mrs C L Henderson whose card appears elsewhere in this paper offers a rare opportunity to persons desiring instruction in the branches which she teaches. She comes highly recommended from a school of the first rank, has had years of experience and possesses the happy faculty of teaching the practical use of the French, Spanish and other languages. She occupied the position of Instructor of foreign students in English and American students in foreign languages in Cornell University for several years.

ELECTION, G. A. R.—The following officers were elected last evening in Baker and Canby Post No. 1, G A R. Post Commander W S hewbury, Senior Vice Commander, G W Johnson; Junior Vice Commander, F R Teal, Quartermaster, H C Hitchcock; Officer of the Day, G C Sears; Chaplain M S Hosford, Officer of the Guard J A Crouch; Quartermaster Sergeant, F Story; Sergeant Major E C Bangher; Surgeon, C A DuBois; Sentinel, J Williams.

TRAIN DELAYED.—The through train from Roseburg, due at 4 o'clock last evening arrived at 9:30 o'clock being over five hours behind time. The cause of the delay was owing to an accident to the boiler which happened some distance south of Eugene. Repairs were made at the latter point and the train left Eugene at 4:30 without further delay. There was no connection at Roseburg with the stages, consequently the mails south of that place laid over.

SEVERELY SCALDED.—Charles Gore second engineer of the City of Salem was severely scalded Wednesday by the bursting of the spark-catcher. Dr C C Strong was summoned, who, after an examination of the man's injuries, ordered him to be removed to Good Samaritan Hospital where he is at present. His injuries are receiving every attention, and it is hoped he will soon be able to resume his post of duty.

NEW DRESS.—The Pacific Christian Advocate of this city, dons a new dress this week and those who see the paper will agree that it is greatly improved. The type is of excellent cast and presents as fine a looking page as can be found in any paper in the State. We congratulate Bro Dillon upon his step forward, and wish him and his fine paper abundant success.

RESOLUTIONS

A resolution was unanimously adopted recommending that the Common Council pass an ordinance creating salaries for the First and Second Assistants of the Fire Department—the First Assistant to receive $300 per annum and the Second Assistant $200.

Mr W H Andrus offered the following preamble and resolution, which were adopted:

WHEREAS, The approaching Fourth of July 1876 is the one hundredth anniversary of our national existence and is therefore a fitting day for civic and military organizations to exhibit by public parade their efficiency, as well as their sense of patriotic duty by joyfully assembling together and in conjunction with all true citizens hailing the centennial of our nation's birth with festivities befitting so great an occasion; and

WHEREAS It therefore seems eminently proper that the Portland fire department which has heretofore held its annual parade on the — day of September of each year should in this year of grace hold such parade on the forthcoming Fourth of July; therefore be it

Resolved by the board of delegates of the Portland fire department that we do hereby recommend to the several companies connected with said department to take immediate action looking to the joint celebration by said companies of the Fourth of July 1876 by a grand annual parade of the Portland fire department on said day.

RELIGIOUS NOTES

Father Gibney is delivering a series of Sunday evening lectures in the Catholic church at Oregon City on the subject of "Mysteries."

E W Swafford of Clackamas county, gave us a call this week and reports a series of very profitable union meetings now being held in Oregon City.

Interesting and profitable meetings have been held and will continue morning and evening through the week at the Hall street M E church.

A very crowded house witnessed the interesting exercises of the Sunday school and missionary concert at the East Portland M E church on Sabbath evening last.

The Sunday school connected with the Hall street M E church will give another concert next Sabbath afternoon commencing at 2 o'clock. An interesting programme has been prepared. Gen O O Howard will deliver an address and an entertaining and interesting time is anticipated.

The following is the average attendance at the North Portland M E Mission Sunday School for the quarter ending December 2[illegible] 18[illegible]: Officers and teachers 8 scholars 44[illegible]. Laura Peterson was present every Sabbath and has been present every Sabbath for two years. Number of officers and teachers enrolled 8, intermediate scholars [illegible], infant class [illegible], total 87.

Rev J Hoberg, has recently organized a Sunday school at St Jo with the following officers: E B Williams superintendent; Mrs P P Gates assistant superintendent; Miss Dollie Olds, secretary and treasurer. There was a very good attendance and $15 were contributed, to buy books etc for the school. Mr Hoberg thinks there will be a membership of from 40 to 60 in this school which will make a very creditable showing for the community in which it is situated.

Services have been held nightly during the present week at the Taylor street church and as the week draws to a close the interest increases. Last night the altar was crowded with persons desirous of abstaining from evil and living henceforth better lives. The singing was spirited and the laity worked in hearty co-operation. Quite a number have given experience that they have changed their mode of life and to night renewed effort is to be exerted and Gen O O Howard is expected to be present to aid in the good work.

OREGON

A schooner called the Laura May has just been finished at Coos Bay.

A tug is being built on the Coquille river, and will be ready for use in the spring.

The severe storm last week came near blowing down the courthouse at Empire City.

The Irishmen of Albany intend to have a St. Patrick's day celebration this year for the first time.

We regret to state that Chief Tappens has been confined to his house for several weeks with a severe attack of rheumatic gout.

Mr J F Sheedy a gentleman who has had eight years experience in Indiana and has also taught school in this State for several months has been appointed assistant teacher at St. Michael's College.

At the last regular meeting of the Catholic Library and Christian Doctrine Society on Sunday M. Richards was elected Vice President. Cicero Hogan Librarian and J Byrnes Assistant Librarian to serve during 1876.

Catharine Nelson, of White House Tenn wants to know something about one Robert E Douglas who came to Oregon as a soldier in 1869. If any one in this State or elsewhere knows anything about him please inform the anxious inquirer—address as above.

A LaGrande letter of the 5th says: At this date two companies of regular troops are encamped at this place en route for the bloody fields of Wallowa. The staid old veterans of many hard fought battles treat the matter of risking their scalps with great coolness and absorb hard tack bacon and beans as if no danger was pending.

The question which is more generally heard in local monetary circles at present, than the query as to where the capital is to come from to conduct the ordinary business of the country, is, what enterprises and improvements are to be undertaken the coming season to give an impetus to the trade, push the money now idle into the channels of general circulation and revive the activity which has been experienced in former years. There is not an actual scarcity of funds available for business purposes, but a want of those influences and conditions in the various departments of trade and commerce which turns the "nimble sixpence" with the small tradesman and favors the enlargement of the business of the wholesale firms in merchandising, the increase of acreage and crops on the part of the farmer and the advancer of all industrial pursuits out of and beyond the old worn grooves to which they have been confined by the policy of conservatism—a policy good in the security which it gives against great revulsions of startling disasters in the business world, but hinders rapid progression and grand outreaching enterprise. We hope soon to see the day when this policy, perhaps necessary in the past, will be less obstructive to the commercial interests, especially of our State.

Liverpool Wheat Market.

The following is our special cablegram of wheat quotations direct from Liverpool to-day

LIVERPOOL Jan 13 1876

OREGONIAN, Portland. To-day's Liverpool wheat market closed as follows Oregon wheat, ex warehouse, from 10s 11d to 11s per cental. California club ex warehouse from 10s 11d to 11s 1d per cental. Oregon cargoes afloat on passage to the United Kingdom 10s 8d to 10s 10d per cental. The market is steady. HENRY JUMP & SONS.

Under these figures for Oregon and California club the quotations for average California wheat would be 10s 6d@10s 8d, or an average of [illegible] over than Oregon cargoes.

The Produce Market.

Our Liverpool telegrams to-day denote a decline of 2d per cental on wheat since last week, and holders are inquiring when this is going to stop. The same question has been puzzling the heads of some who have thought they know a great deal about the markets until this season came and upset the calculations of the wisest of them. Our local market in this cereal is unchanged from the position held for several days past, and without any special reason to urge buyers into the market prices are firm at our quotations. A sharp advance and a scarcity in oats are noted in the reports by telegraph from San Francisco, and ours is somewhat in sympathy as will be seen by quotations below. The receipts at this point are very light, and the local trade consumes most that come to hand. Provisions are essentially as quoted last week, but bacon though not actually marked down, shows a tendency to weakness, and large lots would be difficult to place at our figures. Lard is also in full supply and offers of maximum quotations are freely taken. Dairy products are abundant and choice qualities only command the highest figures given. Eggs are coming forward freely, and neither jobbers or shippers would probably pay more than 30 cents per dozen, to which quotations are reduced and a downward tendency noted. Poultry is in fair request without material change in prices. Hides, peltry etc are dull and we have marked down prices in some instances, buyers claiming that former quotations were above what the market warranted on some of the articles of minor importance in this line. Wool quotations are nominally as before given.

Domestic produce generally exhibits little inclination to advance as spring comes nearer and it is found that of leading articles either of general consumption or export, saving one or two exceptions, the surplus in the country is rather larger than average.

MENDING RUBBER BOOTS.—A rubber boot with a hole in it is one of the most useless things it is possible to imagine and in ordinary hands one of the most difficult to repair. The following simple recipe on this point from the Christian Weekly, may be found worth remembering "Cut virgin or native India rubber with a wet knife into the thinnest possible slices, and with shears divide these into threads as fine as fine yarn. Put a small quantity of the shreds (say one tenth or less of the capacity of the bottle) into a wide mouthed bottle and fill it three quarters full of benzine of good quality free from oil. The rubber will swell up almost immediately and in a few days especially if often shaken assumes the consistency of honey. If it inclines to remain in undissolved masses more benzine must be added, but if too thin and watery it needs more rubber. A piece of solid rubber the size of a walnut will make a pint of the cement. This cement dries in a few minutes and by using three coats, in the usual manner will unite leather straps, patches rubber soles backs of boots etc with exceeding firmness. The India rubber unvulcanized can be obtained at most large stores where rubber goods are sold, and at some drug stores.

At the personal solicitation of President McCosh of Princeton College a Presbyterian merchant has given five billiard tables to be placed in the college gymnasium. Shades of Presbyterian dead! has it come to this. If the statement be true it will have the effect of the last trump, and call whole generations from their sleeping dust to protest against such an innovation. Just think of the bare possibility of a French carom game between the venerable and ever to be venerated president of Princeton and the equally and loved Crosby, of New York, with Dr Hall as umpire. Well it may be funny, but it is a sensible thing to do, and Dr McCosh will save his young men from a great many temptations by having the billiard tables under control. The smile is irresistible when we think of Presbyterians handling the cue and listening with anything like pleasure to the rattling balls but if the church had the sturdy courage to capture all the pleasures of society it would do as much good as a very large pile of sermons
